Agriculture:

As the India's population is increasing the growth of agriculture is decreasing day-by-day. Based on the analysis of data in the past few years the agriculture and production yeilding has decreased. Even though the agriculture is mostly done by the rural parts of the India, most of the schemes for agriculture should be implemented to support the families of farmers.

By implementing different machines and technologies in farming will also leads to improvement on agriculture. India is a agricultural country. Agriculture is the source of food, and it also provides the vast employment. The beauty of this sector is an individual does not always require a high-standard degree.
